

Table with multiple columns and rows, likely a financial or operational report. The table is highly detailed and contains many small text entries and numerical values. The header section includes various categories and sub-headers, and the data rows follow a consistent grid structure. The table is oriented horizontally and occupies the top portion of the page.